CONCLUSION

The ROM-GPS study will show how effective the treatments are which are routinely provided in outpatient geriatric psychiatry, and to what extent this effectiveness is compromised by the typical characteristics of an elderly population. This will indicate where standard treatments need to be adjusted and supplemented. Furthermore, it will provide a good infrastructure for patient selection for additional studies in our Regional Geriatric Psychiatry Network.